Pennsylvania-based Quality Corrections & Inspections is a family-owned business that has assisted hundreds of world-renowned companies since 1986. The firm provides third-party repair, inspections, fulfillment and labor-outsourcing services for businesses dealing with quality control and assurance needs. Clients include manufacturers, importers, retailers and mail-order businesses. Clients include manufacturers, importers, retailers and mail-order businesses. QCI's 40,000-square-foot production center, located at 882 American Pacific Drive in Black Mountain Business Park, is focused primarily on the quality-assurance needs of its general merchandise clients, which include retailers of footwear, apparel, housewares, home furnishings and toys, as well as other new clients who may need QCI's repair, audits and inspections and packaging and assembly services on the West Coast. The center opened in December and will employ 50 to 75 people initially.

In their words

"We've been in business for 18 years in Pennsylvania, and we were looking for a West Coast facility to work with our importers. The competition came down between Ontario, Calif., and Henderson. We chose Henderson because it's a more business friendly place - it has a better tax structure and the workman's compensation insurance is more affordable. We're as close to California as we could be without actually being there.

"Jeff Leake, of the city's economic development department, did a fantastic job working one-on-one with me. He really was instrumental in assisting me through quite complex permitting issues. I'm glad Jeff was there to help me through every step in the process.

"We're excited to be in Henderson. We think it's going to be a good place to grow our business."
